I am not going down this road. You have no idea how much I was injured and the disabilities I suffer from.
Leave it at that.

Stroke yes. You got within a week of completion and stopped.
How do you explain having a stroke getting within a week and then all of a sudden what it's the stroke again.
Come on Dennis just got to get real with this when you don't finish things that hurt your credibility.

You obviously don't believe I suffered a stroke or you wouldn't be writing what you do.

I think you could have played it different. I need Dennis I still don't have the birth certificate finished only you could control that. There's no getting around that would have to be the testimony. Your actions have culpability as well Arpaio and Sheridan said the data was bogus. That hurt me, they then implied I was slow playing the work. They never even mentioned the fact I had a stroke.

Ironically the very thing that may have hurt them, may be the thing that ends the Judge Snow contempt hearings.

Well they do have to worry about me or the data anymore.

I did not to hurt Sheridan or Arpaio. I don't understand why they decided to hurt me?

They know I have a brain injury, and am struggling just to live.

I would if I sued him. For the amount of money MCSO has spent on the judges court order in the Melendres case, maybe they should have spent some to expose the DOJ and their involvement in Covington.

Out of my wheelhouse. Up to others at this point.

I don't think it really matters at this point anyway. The fight will turn to the judge, and the rest of this won't matter.

The damage was done to my reputation.

The fact is the data is right, and no one will ever know how Lanny Breuer and the DOJ used NSA/CIA data to win the victory against Arpaio.

I had that conversation with them yesterday and advised them that that is not what I'm going to testify to Neither is Brian I talked to him today we're both on the same page.

Either way, not much I can do.

The judge will recuse himself now. Either way, the June 16 hearings will be delayed until it the motion is ruled on. Unless the judge recuses himself quickly, this will delay everything.

Either way my reputation is just more damaged by this.

Tim is still in jail, trying to recuse the judge, and he is at the Supreme Court, not having much luck.

Have a nice weekend.
